

Hess' Escape May Indicate Revolt Within Germany

Anti-Nazi Black Front Said to Seek Overthrow of Nazi Party
British Question, But Doubt, That Hess Desertion of Hitler Is a Ruse

Montreal, May 13 (Canadian Press)—The Montreal Herald quoted Otto Strasser, leader of the Anti-Nazi Black Front, in a copyright interview today as saying the flight of Rudolf Hess seemed to indicate that the German army chiefs and Hermann Goering seek to overthrow the Nazi Party.

"Within one hour of the accession of Goering to power Goebbels and Heinrich Himmler would be shot dead," Strasser, a founder of the national socialist party, was quoted as saying.

"That is why Hess, in my opinion fled for his life." Goering, said Strasser, is closer to the Prussian Army and the leading industrialists than anyone in Germany. Hess, on the other hand, has always been Hitler's closest and most trusted friend and a party leader with Hitler and Himmler.

Washington, May 13 (AP)—Diplomatic circles agreed today that the melodramatic flight of Rudolf Hess to Britain would be a great blow to the morale of the German people, no matter what explanation they accept.

Both the official German and the British accounts of the war's strangest episode, it was said, contain elements that can hardly be reassuring to the average man in the third reich.

These sources reasoned as follows:

The German Version
The German version speaks of Hess's "falling health for years" and raised doubts as to his sanity, at least at the time he decamped. Inasmuch as Hess continued active in important government and Nazi party affairs almost to the end, the inevitable question arises as to Hess's mental condition for some time past.

In short, the German people may well wonder how long important affairs have been in the hands of a man of dubious mental stability.

The British Opinion
The British account shows different seeds of doubt. It represents Hess, long one of Hitler's closest associates, as deserting from fuhrer at the high tide of victory to surrender voluntarily in Great Britain. And it stresses his complete sanity.

Accepted in this light, Hess's flight can only dumbfound the average German, it was said. There never had been any question of Hess's loyalty to Hitler in the past. He had stuck to the fuhrer during the most discouraging days of the Nazi movement. Why this amazing turnabout? Did it mean he saw defeat ahead for the reich? Had he lost faith in Hitler?

Diplomats are Bewildered
Diplomatic quarters here were frankly bewildered as to the complete significance of the entire matter. Apparently authoritative reports reaching the capital, however, agreed on three points: that Hess's identity had been established beyond doubt; that he was perfectly sane, and that he fled Germany for fear of his life.

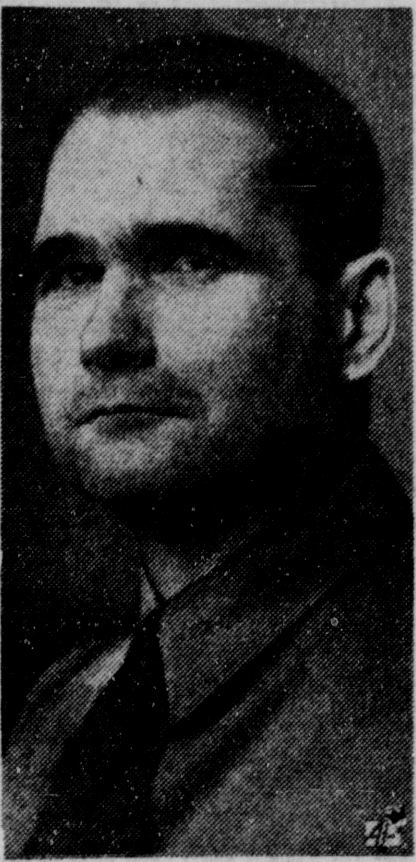

A likely reason for the breach, one informed source said, was disagreement over Germany's future military moves, but this makes for a strange denouement. Hess, it was explained, had been usually identified with the so-called left wing of Nazi officials who advocated a knock-out invasion of Britain, whereas the generals and right wing officials favored the Mediterranean and middle east theatre of operations for the present.

A Nazi Trap Suspected
If that caused the break, then Hess did the amazing thing of seeking refuge in a country whose conquest he had been urging. However, it was pointed out that England probably was the only place in the old world where he would be out of Germany's reach.

Nazi in Scotland

The British government announced in London that Rudolf Hess (above), Germany's No. 3 Nazi, landed by parachute from a German fighter plane near Glasgow Scotland, bearing photographs of himself to prove his identity.

The World Today

[By the Associated Press]
In addition to rejoicing over their prize prisoner of the war, the British found good news in an Admiralty announcement that British, allied and neutral merchant shipping losses in the "Battle of the Atlantic" during April were the lowest in 11 months—a total of 301,070 tons.

Overnight, R.A.F. bombers driving the war home to Germany again smashed at the port city of Bremen and other points in the western Reich, while the Luftwaffe eased its assaults on the British Isles.

Other R.A.F. targets included Mannheim, in the German Rhineland, Cologne, Koblenz, Ostend and Dunkerque.

On the African war front, the British reported two imperial columns moving from opposite directions were closing the jaws of a huge pincers on 38,000 Italian troops said to be trapped at Amba Alaji, in northern Ethiopia.

The two British forces were reported only 20 miles apart.

In southern Ethiopia, the British reported they had occupied the last Italian stronghold in the Wardara district.

In North Africa, Hitler's high command said German tanks shot to pieces a British battery near Tobruk, Libya, where a British garrison has been under siege since April 6. Lively scouting activity on both sides was reported in the Salum sector, near the Egyptian-Libyan frontier, where Axis columns had been stalled for several weeks in a drive into Egypt toward the Suez canal.

Hitler, meanwhile, stepped back into personal leadership of the national socialist party, which Hess had directed as his deputy.

Prime Minister Churchill announced in the house of commons today that a further statement would be made shortly about the surprising flight of Rudolf Hess to Scotland.

Parachuting Down Into Scotland Does Rudolf Hess Bring Secrets? Or?

Former No. 2 Heir Apparent Treated by British as Prisoner of War.

[By the Associated Press]
London, May 13.—Rudolf Hess, parachuting from a crash-bound Messerschmitt fighter onto a Scottish Moor last Saturday night—a potential bearer of Nazi secrets—broke the Hitler hierarchy in a development that may alter the course of the European war, the British declared today.

Authorities, casting aside, for the moment at least, the crop of rumors linked with this strange chapter in a gigantic struggle of men, their ideas and arms, insisted only that Hess came to Britain defiantly sane.

Great Propaganda Windfall
They declared that his was no special mission—that he brought no peace terms, but still the British were the beneficiaries of a great propaganda windfall, if not actual military help.

The German version was that Hess was a victim of hallucinations and one of these was an undying hope for restoration of friendship between Germany and Britain and that he might have reasoned that, through personal sacrifice, he could bring this about.

How Hess, now a prisoner of war at some secret place, might advance this concept of what the Nazis called his disordered mind was a factor for the manipulation of British intelligence, propaganda and statesmanship.

ACTIVITIES OF BOROUGH'S 1863 LEADER RELATED

Great-Grandson of David Kendlehart Addresses Society

John B. Kendlehart, a Gettysburg college student and great-grandson of David Kendlehart, who was president of the borough council at the time of the battle of Gettysburg and later burgess of this town, presented a paper on his prominent ancestor, his family and their associations with events in the history of the town at the May meeting of the Adams County Historical society on Monday evening in the court house.

There also was a brief paper taken from the recollections of the late John Willis which told of Burgess Robert Martin and David Kendlehart and their contacts with the Confederate troops who made a requisition of the town for soldiers' supplies and food. A daguerreotype of Burgess Martin and pictures of Mr. Kendlehart and General Early and the official notes the latter exchanged were shown.

Await Commissioners' Decision
During the business session, which opened the society meeting, Treasurer Franklin R. Bigham, Esq., reported 45 paid-up members and then presented a report as chairman of the committee working for museum facilities and headquarters for the society in the court house building.

He told the members the April grand jury had recommended that the plans for improving two basement rooms be carried out and that action now awaits decision of the county commissioners to proceed with the court-approved project.

Mr. Kendlehart then was presented and he read his paper on "David Kendlehart of Gettysburg." His subject, he said, was a son of natives of the province of Hanover in Germany but was born in Gettysburg on December 30, 1813. He died on April 30, 1891, and is buried in Evergreen cemetery. His wife was Eliza Ann Bowen and they had five children: Mary Cecilia, Sarah Louise, Margaretta Bowen, John Lewis, who was a lawyer and once served in the office of the secretary of the Commonwealth at Harrisburg, and J. William Kendlehart, who was a former employee and director of the Gettysburg National bank and died only recently.

Learned Shoemaking Trade

David Kendlehart was born in the building that is now Thompson's warehouse on Carlisle street. He learned the shoemaking trade and at one time employed as many as six men in his shop besides conducting a shoe and boot shop. He was active in the community and listed among his other activities that of being founder and a charter member of the Gettysburg Water company, one of the early directors of the Evergreen Cemetery association, a director of the Gettysburg National bank and treasurer of the local Trotting association. He was active in the "underground railway" activities and a foe of slavery.

In 1855 he was elected to the borough council and on February 19, 1878 was made burgess.

John Burns, citizen hero of the battle of Gettysburg, was an employee of Mr. Kendlehart, and served as a messenger between General Early and Mr. Kendlehart when the Confederates arrived here June 26 and requisitioned large supplies of flour, salt, bacon, shoes, grain and other supplies. Mr. Kendlehart, who was the highest borough official present in the absence of Burgess Martin, who had left probably to avoid being taken as a hostage to force compliance with the demand for supplies, replied to General Early it was "utterly impossible to comply" with his demands and avoided further contacts with the Confederate officers bearing official demands.

The paper gave David Kendlehart credit for being the first to inform (Continued on Page Seven)

Immediate action by a service committee to bring to the attention of the borough authorities any section where conditions favorable to the development of mosquitoes was planned Monday evening at a lengthy meeting of the citizens' committee for mosquito eradication held in the council chambers in the fire engine house.

Mrs. Charles Huber was named chairman of the service committee of the group. Other members of the committee include Wilber J. Stallsmith, Daniel Shealer, Dr. Harry F. Baughman, Mrs. E. P. Strausbaugh, Mrs. Milton Remmel, George Black, Charles C. Culp and Mrs. Marie Armstrong Zeigler.

Among the matters to be brought to the children's attention, it was decided, will be the proper methods of placing oil cans under shrubbery to prevent mosquitoes from gathering in the shrubs; a plan by which the children will gather tin cans and other trash material and place it in definite spots to be picked up for removal by a truck; reasons for keeping grass and weeds mowed in order to prevent mosquitoes from gathering in the tall grass, and methods by which the children can report to the citizens' committee any section which needs to be properly cleaned.

April Set Record for Visitors to Battleground

A total of 11,687 persons were conducted through the Gettysburg National Military park by the licensed guides during the month of April. The estimated total number of visitors, both with and without guides, is 71,959. Both figures represent records for April travel.

The nearest approach to this figure was reached in April, 1935, when approximately 65,000 visitors were reported. One hundred and fourteen buses with 3,561 passengers were included in last month's total. There were 2,417 guided tours in private cars.

During the month of April, 1940, there were 1,265 guided private cars and 72 buses with a total number of 6,256 visitors. The total visitation for April, 1940, was estimated at 38,430.

Superintendent J. Walter Coleman, in commenting on travel trends, today called attention to the steady increase in the number of buses and the problem which park officials must face in providing for this type of visitation. Since many of the bus visitors are students of schools and colleges, and since a visit to the National Military park is closely related to their study of American history, an effort is made to give them special consideration. Road improvements in the park, over a period of years, have done much to make this type of travel safe and convenient and no serious accidents were reported, Superintendent Coleman pointed out.

QUILL WITH A WILL—A determined brown quill thrusts itself lengthwise through this jaunty "boater" made of a woolen plaid material and designed by Elfride in London. Note the sweeping wartime coiffure of the blonde English model.

Archibald Receives Decision Over Jeffra

Washington, May 13 (AP)—Joey Archibald, a little fighting man from Providence, R. I., laid claim to recognition today as the leading contender for the National Boxing association's featherweight title held by Pete Scalzo in 40-odd states.

Archibald gained a split second decision over Jeffra Jeffra, of Baltimore, last night in a bout that served merely to further complicate the featherweight championship situation.

Jeffra, who lost a disputed decision to Archibald here two years ago but reversed the verdict in Baltimore in 1940, was recognized, prior to last night, as the featherweight titleholder in New York, Maryland, Pennsylvania and California.

Referee Eddie La Fond cast his vote for Jeffra last night, but the two judges, Bob Eller and James Sullivan, decided Archibald's aggressiveness in the last round entitled him to victory.

Jeffra weighed 124½, Archibald 123.

The 1940 census of the United States, with its maze of geographical, industrial, and commercial information will take 65 volumes.

LOOKING AROUND

The Gettysburg college baseball team will wind up its Eastern Pennsylvania Collegiate league schedule Wednesday afternoon when Bucknell will be met on Nixon field at 3:30 o'clock. Coach Ira Plank will probably use his veteran pitching star, Ralph Cox. A win for the Bullets will assure them of at least a tie for the league title and might easily win them the title.

Tonight at 7:30 o'clock the officials of the Community Softball loop will meet at the Arcadia club room, Center Square. Included among the important business to be transacted will be the adoption of the schedule, posting of forfeit money, and final approval to the rosters.

After an absence of seven years auto racing will again be held on the York Fair grounds on Memorial Day, May 30, at which time the National Open Championship races will be staged. Drivers from all parts of the country, regardless of their racing affiliations, will enter. Among the early entrants are such drivers as Harry Harper, Pennsylvania state champion; Al Simpson, Detroit; Hal Prentiss, Ardmore, Oklahoma; Andy Purci, Providence, Rhode Island, and Buster Williams, of New York state.

Coach Pete Beeson's powerful Gettysburg college track team will wind up its season this week with two dual meets away from home. On Wednesday afternoon Haverford will be met at Philadelphia and on Saturday Dickinson will be met at Carlisle. The Bullets are undefeated in dual meets this season.

The Bullet tennis and golf squads also finish their campaigns this week. The racquetball play a return match with F. and M. at Lancaster Wednesday and finish with a match at Carlisle with Dickinson on Saturday. The golfers play at Dickinson Wednesday and face F. and M. at Lancaster on Friday.

Another record-breaking crowd is expected Sunday afternoon at the Williams Grove Speedway when the second big car race sanctioned by the American Automobile association will be staged on the half-mile dirt track. Attendance for the first AAA big car race of the 1941 season on May 4 exceeded 30,000. Vic Nauman, winner of the initial race of the season, has already signified his intention of returning to repeat his earlier triumph.

Some Major League Careers to End May 15

New York, May 13 (AP)—Some of baseball's longest and most colorful voyages are about to go on the rocks on May 15.

That is a barrier major league clubs can't pass with more than 25 active players, and to get to the limit managers have cast adrift such once-great players as Paul Waner, Dick Bartell, Wes Ferrell, Van Mungo, Tex Carleton and Earl Averill. It's also the date set for Jimmy Dykes' official retirement as a player, but the fiery White Sox manager hasn't done any playing to speak of since 1938.

Latest to go are Waner, Bartell and Mungo, whose combined term of major league service up to this season totals 39 years. The first two drew their outright releases from Brooklyn and Detroit Sunday. At the same time Mungo was taken off the Dodgers' active list with indications that he soon will join Calton at Montreal. Carleton was shipped down to the Brooklyn "farm" a couple of weeks ago, just about a year after he had pitched a no-hit game against the champion Cincinnati Reds.

The Boston Braves cast off Ferrell and Averill within the past week or two after taking them from American league clubs at the start of the season. Another colorful baseball character, Zebe Bonura, never got to start this season, winding up at Minneapolis after arguing about the contract the Cubs offered him.

Some of them may catch on with other clubs, as Bump Hadley did with the Athletics after being cut loose by the Yankees and then the Giants. Bill Terry, the Giants manager, already has shown interest in Bartell, who sparked his club to pennants in 1936 and 1937, and may take him on as infield "insurance" if they don't land other jobs, the big leagues will miss them.

Waner, whose nickname of "Big Poison" came from his batting, not his size, played 14 seasons with Pittsburgh before he was released last winter. He led the National league hitters three years and was voted the circuit's most valuable player in 1937.

BULLETS DOWN TERRORS

The Gettysburg college tennis team won its second straight victory Monday afternoon by defeating Western Maryland here, 5-4.

BULLETS LACE TERROR NINE BY 13-2 SCORE

Three Homers for Locals Who Pound Out 17 Hits

Collecting 17 safe hits off three Western Maryland hurlers, the Gettysburg college baseball nine swung back into the win column Monday afternoon by defeating the Terrors 13-2 in a game played at Westminster.

Included in the Bullet barrage were three homers, two by Merle Showalter and another by Howard Shoemaker.

Lefty Augst pitched steadily throughout and was never in trouble.

The victory was the seventh of the season for Gettysburg as against four defeats.

Bucknell will meet the Bullets here Wednesday afternoon in a league game.

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIEZF

New York, May 13 — Broadway newsreel crowds applaud every time Hank Greenberg is shown in an Army uniform. . . . When and if Ty Cobb and Babe Ruth meet in that golf match, the old bam probably will remind Ty of the time he struck out Cobb, Sam Crawford and Bobby Veach of the Tigers with the bases loaded. . . . Freddy Corcoran, who knows his golf onions, tabs Johnny Palmer of Badin, N. C., as a real dark horse in the national open. This 20-year-old turned pro in the Greensboro open and finished in the money. Last week he tied Clayton Heafner for first place in the Carolina open, then won the play-off by firing a 64 to Heafner's 69.

Today's guest star — Roy Shudt, Troy (N.Y.) Times-Record: "Does it strike you as odd how the big boys are bowing out in order? . . . First it was Babe Ruth, wearing No. 3. . . . Then Lou Gehrig, No. 4. . . . Last Ten Lou Gehrig, No. 4. . . . Last week it was Hank Greenberg, No. 5. . . . No. 6?"

The sports parade — Up in Boston they refer to Joe DiMaggio merely as Dom DiMaggio's brother. . . . Eddie Rickenbacker is writing friends he positively will attend the Indianapolis 500-mile race — and that's great news for all. . . . Pete Coscarart would be playing second base for Montreal if the Giants would let him get out of the league. . . . George Abrams, Ken Overlin's stablemate, will headline the Army-Navy boxing show Gene Tunney is staging Saturday at Jacksonville. . . . Larry MacPhail is so high on television he is toying with the idea of piping the World's Series into a half-dozen Brooklyn theaters — if the Dodgers are in there, of course. . . . "The Sporting News" has issued its 1941 record book and it's a "must" on your sports reading program.

Today's true story — Two weeks ago a friend long-distanced Hank Greenberg from Honolulu. . . . He said: "You've got to have more power if you're going to start hitting homers. . . . I'm sending you four cases of pineapples." . . . Last Tuesday the pineapples arrived. . . . And on Wednesday Hank hit his first two homers of the year.

It all happened here — Johnny Riemenschneider, pitching for the Whittier (La.) highs, whiffed 21 batters in a seven-inning game to win, 16-0. Just to rub it in, he homered, doubled and singled. . . . And down in Mississippi, Perkinson Junior college made 14 runs, 14 hits and 14 errors while beating Wood Junior, which made five runs, five hits and five errors. . . . Don't look now, but 55 runs have been piled up against the Emory and Henry baseballers in their past two games. . . . And this paradox may interest you: The Arizona State Bulldogs have won the border conference football title two years in a row and both times met an eastern team in Sun Bowl games, but still haven't been able to lick the red ink. Even the college stationery is lettered in red.

Oh, eh! — And now it's the fans of Idaho Falls, Idaho, who are wondering if Brooklyn is still in the league. . . . One of the papers out there completely ignored the Brooks in the National league standings the other day, but put the Giants in twice.

One-minute interview — Umpire Larry Goetz: "I saw the Soose-Overlin fight. . . . Never again will I ever need be ashamed of any decision I make on the ball field."

Today's Talk

By George Matthew Adams

INTELLIGENT HAWAII

ONE of the most amazing developments in Hawaii is its educational system—its schools. It was a fascinating sight to see children streaming from its beautiful schools. I stood and watched them day after day. A colorful sight—nationalities galore—but each child a born American—and I never have seen such happy carefree, healthy children come from any school.

It started way back. The American missionaries published the first spelling book in 1820. And it was here that the first newspaper west of the Rockies was published. The building is preserved to this day. I took a picture of it to hang in my office.

Great credit must go to King Kamehameha III, probably the most colorful of all Hawaiian rulers, for the created desire on the part of the islanders for knowledge and culture. In 1824 he made this statement: "All my people who are able to stand up long enough to read a lesson shall learn to write—or I will give them no food." Everyone rushed to school!

Today there is no state among the 48 in the United States that has a finer educational system or better schools. In them all pupils are taught, in addition to their regular studies, the fundamentals of a free way of life, and to be useful citizens in the community. Graduated boys and girls are readily absorbed by the great industrial enterprises—the Sugar, Pineapple and other organizations, which have made the islands so famous industrially. In Hawaii the job hunts the man or woman!

As long ago as 1849—when the gold hunters flocked to California, people along the coast sent their children to these enchanted islands to be educated, because of the hazardous overland journey in those days. I was interested to learn that the first printing press to come to the Pacific Northwest came from Hawaii.

Teachers, especially, can get the thrill of their lives in visiting Hawaii, if for no other purpose than to study its magnificent educational institutions. And all its fragrant flowers, its sunny days, its incomparable beauties of landscape, and its famed hospitality, thrown in for an overflowing measure!

Tomorrow Mr. Adams will talk on the subject: "Home—in Hawaii."

Out of the Past

(From the Files of the Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times)

FIFTY YEARS AGO

B. F. Lightner has secured the contract for the granite for the New York State monument.

The reformed congregation of this place has decided to remodel their church, the changes to cost about $3,000. There is talk of adding a tower. The pastor, Rev. T. J. Barkley, Mr. G. W. Weaver and J. S. Butt, Esq., are the committee.

The thirteen year old son of Mr. Chas. W. Beales, of near Round Hill, has put out this spring, twelve acres of oats and several of corn. His father has been sick and the work devolved upon the boy.

J. C. Neely, Esq., has purchased a fine driving horse from Frick, of Millersburg.

A Success: The entertainment given on Tuesday evening under the direction of Miss Beulah Tipton at her home on Chambersburg street, for the benefit of the poor, was a very successful affair. The following young ladies acquitted themselves with great credit in the "Quarrel of the Flowers": Misses Bessie Tipton, Blanche Hake, E. Eichelberger, Blanche Minnigh, N. Myers, Carrie Tipton, Sallie Herbst and Alma Comfort. Mrs. Ziegler sang several selections in a very creditable manner for so small a boy. The Co. entered into an agreement with the Borough authorities. They agree to put in the plant and have it in running order within twelve months; if they do not, all of their interests are to become the property of the Borough without cost. On their part, the Council agrees to give them all facilities for erecting their poles and wires along the streets. A bond in $1,000 accompanies the agreement. A charter was applied for on the 6th of May.

Mr. David McCleary resigned as councilman from the third ward, he having removed, and J. Harry Stine was appointed his successor.

Cold Weather: On Tuesday evening special frost bulletins announcing a damaging frost were received from the Weather Bureau at Washington. The thermometer went down to 40 degrees and serious apprehension was felt for the fruit, but the wind continued and clouds formed, and there was little or no frost. On Wednesday morning a few flakes of snow fell.

Sudden Death: The town was startled on Friday morning by the sudden death of Mr. F. W. Reichle, of West Middle street. He took his cows to pasture and intended to fix the fences about the field. Before he had done much work he was evidently overcome and lay down. Some time after he was found dead by J. A. Tawney. A few days before Mr. Reichle had suffered severely with his heart. Two sons survive him.

Just Folks

By Edgar A. Guest

"GLAD I DID!"

"Wish I hadn't!" and "Glad I did!" Just like sunny and rainy weather, Right and wrong, and sigh and song. Blunders and good works lumped together.

"Wish I hadn't!" how oft the cry Follows the pang of the moment heedless!

The good friend hurt by a greeting curt And the thoughtless jibe—and it all so needless.

But now and then there's a "Glad I did." A touch of pride through the spirit surging.

A gracious deed in a time of need, In response to a vague, subconscious urging.

"Wish I hadn't!" is vain regret, A sense of shame for our blunders voicing.

But it happens, too, what is right, we do And "Glad I did!" is the heart rejoicing.

The Words They Used

Prime Minister Churchill (when he was asked whether he considered it prudent to announce that Hess is in a Glasgow hospital):—"Hess won't always be in Glasgow."

Dr. Robert Ley (leader of the German labor front):—"In three years the part of Europe ruled by Germany will be working full blast for the Reich * * * then 300,000,000 Europeans of our continent, with the powerful, inexhaustible resources of their economy and work, will face 130,000,000 Americans in the United States and 40,000,000 Englishmen in ruined and defeated England."

NDMB redoubled its efforts at Washington to avert a strike against General Motors 60 plants with more than 160,000 workers.

HOUSE LEADERS
PROMISE TAX REDUCTION

Shapiro Says More Is Available Than Governor Estimated

[By the Associated Press]

Harrisburg, May 13 — A "substantial" reduction of the personal property and gross receipts taxes will be made in the house before these bills to continue these taxes are passed and sent to the senate, democratic leaders said today.

"The reduction may amount to 'several million dollars a year,' they said.

Senator Harry Shapiro (D-Phila.), explaining the move, declared an analysis of Governor James' $542,000,000 budget showed "at least $28,000,000 more than the executive estimate would be available from tax yields in the next two years."

Would Take Over County Hospitals Shapiro declared the extra funds would be "more than enough" to permit the state to take over 12 county mental institutions, a democratic proposal, and make the suggested tax reduction.

The democrats control the house where most of the tax program now is in committee. Shapiro said "we'll make the reduction there and if the republicans controlling the senate want to increase the taxes again it will show where they stand."

Gas and Cigarettes

The house has released only two of the tax bills — re-enacting for two years the "emergency" taxes of one cent a gallon on gasoline and a cent for each 10 cigarettes. Yet to be acted on by committee are the bills re-enacting the taxes on personal property, gross receipts of utilities and transportation companies, corporate net income, liquor and bank shares.

Governor James warned failure of the legislature to adopt the program by the end of the biennium, May 31, would mean a payless payday in the government. Rep. Leo A. Achterman, democratic floor leader of the house, asserted, however, "the general appropriation bill will be out in sufficient time for the government to continue functioning as inefficiently as it has in the past two years."

Appropriation Bills Wednesday The house appropriations committee, it was said, intends to report out on Wednesday bills appropriating state funds for more than 50 schools, hospitals and other institutions.

The house, returning at noon (EST), arranged a heavy schedule for its full membership as well as a half dozen committee meetings today. Topping off the activities is a public hearing on the bill to restore the 1937 rates of workmen's compensation benefits.

Action on proposed hospital investigations came on two fronts in the assembly. The house released from committee a resolution calling for an inquiry into the conduct of the 10 state hospitals. At the same time, Chairman George Detrick (R-Northumberland) announced his senate committee investigating the Shamokin state hospital, planned additional hearings before making a report.

The first conference committee of the 1941 session — a body created to handle a bill when one house refuses to accept another branch's amendments — was required when the house insisted on its changes to a bill calling on the voters in Pittsburgh to decide on a proposed eight hour day and three-platoon system for city firemen. The senate refused to concur in the changes.

The senate approved and relayed to the house measures revising Philadelphia's registration laws to eliminate "phantom voters," authorizing construction of a 60-mile "rim" highway across the Poconos, and setting up a special board of review to act on dismissals and salary reductions for employees of third class cities.

Shipyards strikes continue to tie up more than half a billion of naval construction at Boston and San Francisco.

UAW-CIO union agreed to postpone its strike against Hudson Motor Co., until the company's directors could consider their demands.

PARACHUTING
SCOTLAND

Does Rudolph Hess Bring Secrets? Or?

Continued from page one one accused of hallucinations. He reached Scotland from Augsburg, Bavaria, under cover of darkness, hunted for a place to set down his fast Messerschmitt-110 and, falling that, bailed out while the plane crashed in a streak of flying wreckage.

A farmer, armed with a pitchfork, found him beside the folds of his parachute, with an injured leg and took him in.

Break in the Nazi Party The British minister of information, Alfred Duff Cooper, told a jubilant luncheon meeting today, that "I can only say that his arrival here shows the first breach in the Nazi party that has occurred since Hitler murdered a huge bloc of his own followers on June 30, 1933."

This was a reference to the "blood purge" in which Hess helped execute Hitler's orders as one of the oldest and most faithful of Nazi followers. Hess was Hitler's amanuensis in the writing of Mein Kampf in Landsberg prison. He rose to become his personal representative for party affairs, virtually minister without portfolio in Hitler's inner circle. Hitler named him at the outset of the war as his second choice for succession to the fuhrership, after Marshal Hermann Goering, in event of Hitler's death.

Hess has been seen by doctors who found him sane and healthy, this source said. He was identified by Ivan Kirkpatrick, former British charge d'affaires in Berlin.

Meanwhile, photographs of the wreckage of the Messerschmitt fighting plane from which Hess bailed out show the tail punctured by a number of machine-gun bullets.

British sources took this as an indication that pursuers — either German or British — tried to bring down the plane.

Parts of the plane were scattered over the Scottish moor, the engine half-buried in the ground and the three-bladed propeller smashed. But the tail part was intact and showed at least 10 closely-spaced bullet holes.

(The possibility remained, however, that these holes might have been put in the plane before Hess' flight, when it might have been in the hands of a fighting airman.)

Prisoner of War The former number two heir apparent to Adolf Hitler is being treated as a prisoner of war.

Despite the official statement in London that Hess brought no special message, the rumor flood at Glasgow included one that Hess had asserted he possessed certain important information about the German air force which he wanted to communicate to the British.

Authoritative sources here quickly reiterated that this is not true. At the same time it was emphasized that he was not insane.

Lord Beaverbrook's Evening Standard asserted that if Hitler had wanted to use a peace "ruse" to divide the British people he scarcely would adopt "so clumsy a device" as parachuting Hess down on British soil.

London Morning Charles Dickens Told of It in a Word Picture

It was a cheerless morning when they got into the street; blowing and raining hard; and the clouds looking dull and stormy. . . .

By the time they had turned into the Bethnal Green road, the day had fairly begun to break. Many of the lamps were already extinguished; and now and then a stagecoach, covered with mud, rattled briskly by. . . .

The public-houses, with gaslights burning inside, were already open. By degrees other shops began to be unclosed, and a few scattered people were met with. Then came the straggling groups of laborers going to their work; then, men and women with fish-baskets on their heads; donkey-carts laden with vegetables; . . . and an unbroken concourse of people, trudging out with various supplies to the eastern suburbs of the town. As they approached the City, the noise and traffic gradually increased; and when they threaded the streets between Shoreditch and Smithfield, it had swelled into a road of sound and bustle. It was as light as it was likely to be, till night came on again; and the busy morning of half the London population had begun. . . .

A York columnist recently commented on York's parking meters and the time of their operations. He cited the confusion out-of-town motorists usually find themselves in because York operates on daylight time and the meters are operated on standard time. "Thus, he says, visitors have been 'tabbed' a dollar fine for violating the parking regulations, especially during the closing hour of the meters' operations, 6 p. m. Motorists are cautioned to bear in mind that the meters in York are operated on standard time and York business places are on daylight saving. A mistake would cost a motorist one dollar.

Charles L. Bear, deputy secretary of the Department of Forests and Waters, states that the brown appearance of needles on evergreen trees and shrubs is the result of the unusual weather conditions during April. Tobruk Churchill Said It Will Be Defended to the Death

By DEWITT MACKENZIE Associated Press Staff Writer British Premier Churchill, during Wednesday's great war-debate in Commons, gave us an important tip on allied strategy in the forthcoming crucial struggle in the Eastern Mediterranean when he declared that "the highly offensive outposts of Crete and Tobruk" will be defended to the death.

This fortified port is the last strong point before the Egyptian border is reached, and it takes no imagination to see its importance both as a defensive position against invasion of Egypt, and for offensive movements against the Axis in the westward. From this one place land forces, warplanes and warships can operate—a powerful combination which, if maintained in strength, would give control not only of the land but of the main sea-lane which passes close to Tobruk on its way to the Suez Canal.

Crete is a strategic point of tremendous potentialities, because it not only provides fine naval and air bases, but is so situated that the Greco-British forces can reach vital points in all directions. It is 80 miles from the nearest point in Nazi occupied Greece, 120 miles from Asiatic Turkey, 200 miles from Italian Libya to the south, and 450 miles from the Suez Canal.

A glance at your maps will make it clear what an asset this will be to the allies if Hitler tries a drive into the Near East. It will be of the utmost importance if he attempts to by-pass Turkey and strike through French-held Syria.

DAVIS MAKES SURPRISE TOUR OF INDIANTOWN

Senator Impressed With "Friendliness" of Officers

[By the Associated Press]
Indiantown Gap, Pa., May 13—Soldiers of Pennsylvania's 28th Division set out on a series of regimental maneuvers today after hearing U. S. Senator James J. Davis (R-Pa.) assert their training would preserve peace by making the United States so strong "no nation on earth will force a war upon us."

Arriving in camp unexpectedly Monday, the state's senior senator made a brief inspection of the military reservation and then said:

"You are training here for peace. Your training will help preserve peace because, with a great fighting machine ready to meet any emergency that may arise, no nation on earth will force a war upon us."

He said he was impressed with the "friendliness and kindly spirit of the officers toward the enlisted men," but added the reservation had the "discipline that is needed to make an invincible military force."

The senator found that "the soldiers here are comfortably housed and conditions are excellent, the food is fine and the morale of the men is high."

He said the inspection tour indicated, however, a need for better roads and other improvements. Observing that the top surface of the camp's miles of dirt road "is blowing away in high winds," Davis said additional surface treatment of the roads seemed necessary as an economy move.

A request by Major General Edward Martin, post commandant, for funds with which to construct a huge lake on the reservation grounds also met with the senator's approval. The lake would provide additional recreational and swimming facilities, as well as a site for the engineers bridge-building activities.

DEFENSE HEAD SAYS DOCTORS, NURSES NEEDED

State Council Director Cites "Impending" Shortage

[By the Associated Press]
Harrisburg, May 13—Pennsylvania's national defense efforts spread out over three fronts today as:

1. Selective service boards sent 4,063 men to induction stations for final physical examination preliminary to entering the army by May 20.

2. Dr. A. C. Marts, director of the state council of defense, disclosed an impending "shortage" of doctors and nurses in the commonwealth and announced the council would undertake an immediate survey to insure that rural areas "would not be denuded" of competent medical care.

3. Reps. Matthew T. Knoble (R-Lackawanna) and Ellwood J. Turner (R-Delaware), introduced a bill appropriating $100,000 for a study of the "extraordinary economic adjustment" brought about by the nation's defense program.

New Examination Plan
Selectees appearing today in the five induction centers are the last that will be taken under the "immediate induction" plan. Effective May 21, selectees will be given up to a 30-day "waiting period" following their army examination which will follow closely upon the examination by board doctors.

Under regulations still in effect, a selectee approved by the local board returns home for an indefinite period pending the army examination. If approved by the army, he was inducted immediately.

The army has called for 18,967 Pennsylvanians to be examined by their doctors between May 21 and June 21.

Dr. Marts said the medical survey was the result of suggestions by Dr. Thomas B. Parran, surgeon general of the United States.

"The supply of doctors and nurses will be inadequate; there is a very decided shortage," declared Dr. Marts. "The aim of the council is to make an even distribution of the available supply."

Drain on Doctors and Nurses
The council, he explained, wants one doctor for every 2,500 population. He attributed the drain on medical men and nurses to selective service.

The Knoble-Turner measure provides for a survey by the state department of Commerce and the state planning board, the findings of which would be reported to the 1943 legislature.

Specifically, it would be aimed at finding "new types of employment" to replace defense employment after the national emergency x x x "In other words, a plan for the future."

Meantime, state selective service headquarters notified the 422 local boards they should distinguish between employables and unemployables in classifying registrations on relief.

Milk Mixture For Stomach Ulcers

A recent medical discovery now being used by doctors and hospitals everywhere has proven unusually successful in the treatment of stomach ulcers caused from excess acid. It is a harmless preparation yet so effective that in many cases the pains of stomach ulcers disappear almost immediately after it is used. Also recommended for gas pains, indigestion and heartburn due to hyperacidity. Sufferers may now try this at home by obtaining a bottle of Lurin from their druggist. Lurin contains this new discovery in its purest form. Easy to take. Just mix two teaspoonsfuls in a half glass of milk. Costs but little and sold under an absolute guarantee that it must satisfy or money refunded. Lurin for sale by People's, and drug stores everywhere.

Someday I'll Find You

BY MARGARET WIDDEMER

YESTERDAY: At least Eileen had a chance, on her honeymoon in Hawaii, to capture the interest as well as the affection of her play-boy husband, rich Martin Dane. But now Caroline Dempster, who has assumed all her life that she would marry Martin, has arrived. And Caroline refuses to believe Eileen married Martin for love and not his money, and has infuriated Eileen by demanding that she accept a settlement, and get out.

CASUAL HUSBAND

UP IN the low wind-swept, luxurious rooms, with Martin's cigarette still smoking upon the ash tray and his raincoat thrown across a chair, she faced it.

Nobody knew what she had said to Martin that night in the taxi. He talked about honor, his word of honor. But he had betrayed her to Caroline.

That was the sort he was. Just what Caroline said: a changeable, irresponsible playboy, whose outer manner and look and build belied by chance with what Eileen had secretly dreamed of all her life. But nothing real in him tallied.

There had been a tramp and two snow leopards, and a near-drowning on a surfboard and a marriage with a florist's assistant from Third Avenue. And each of them had waked Martin up and made him excited and happy and alive for a little while. He had never been able to get the shipboard people said. No, he had told Eileen, "I learned by the time I was six that people thought of my money first."

There was only one thing that would prove to him that she hadn't married him for alimony or a night-club spot or anything but caring. Even though he was only the shell instead of the reality of what she'd thought him.

She rose and lifted Martin's portable, piled with his other luxurious gadgets. She was opening it when he came into the room. He had been playing tennis.

"Got back sooner than you thought?" he said, like any husband.

"Yes." She couldn't have it out with him. If she did, she'd be a weak idiot and stay, maybe. He stood there, smiling at her, swinging the racket and saying, "I like that pink hat. I bet that's the one I picked out myself."

She said what she never had said before, desperately, "Martin, do you love me?"

He laughed and came over to her and tipped up her face and said, "Why wouldn't I?" with one of his light kisses. He crossed the room, chose another racket, and was going out whistling, she said.

"If you hadn't married me, would you have married Caroline?" He paused a moment at the door to answer her. "Why, I suppose so."

The clear whistling went on, more faintly, from the hall then stopped as the elevator door closed behind him.

She was walking up and down, she found, suddenly facing the wild small figure in the mirror, with her hands clenched and teeth streaming down her face. This wouldn't do. Hurry, Martin might come back.

She changed. She packed quickly. Only as much as she needed to balance a check she had thrown away. Only as much ready money as would fly her to New York and leave her not destitute. No jewelry, none of Martin's presents.

She went to the typewriter again and managed a quiet note, as businesslike and cool as Caroline and Martin could need. It stated that she would never make any claim on Martin for money. That she wanted no alimony. That she promised never to use his name to get anywhere in any sort of career. That he was to get a divorce, and that she would communicate with him about it, but only on the promise that he wouldn't try to see her for any reason.

She suggested that he explain that she had been called back by the serious illness of a relative. She slipped the tiny gold ski inside.

Flight

She was lucky, she met nobody she knew on her way to the airport. She was luckier still in picking up a ticket at the very last possible moment, a cancellation. She wondered if Caroline had deliberately made their engagement breakfast on this day, because it was Tuesday, and the plane went at noon Tuesday.

Very likely. Like Caroline. Which did not matter now. She used her mother's name, Ellen Barnett. When the plane lifted, she sat back in her seat with a shiver. That was the end of all that.

She never remembered much, afterwards, about the flight or the landing at San Francisco or the train across country. She must have gone through it all properly, an inconspicuous small silent girl in a rough coat and down-pulled beret.

The first thing she woke to with actual clearness was finding herself, like a cat with a homing instinct, before Aristides' shop. She was standing there, with her shoulder aching from the weight of her suitcase, her feet in the thawing snow, staring through the glass where yellow acacia and tall bright gladioli made a fine if inexpensive show.

She could see Ris, sleek and dark and quick as ever, darting about at his work. She had almost gone when she remembered that she couldn't.

Caroline had said in so many words that she and Aristides were in love; were planning on the money to be extracted from Martin. So had the man and girl on the ship. "She'll go back to some original dream man." For Molly's and Aristides' and her own sake that was out. But she gave Molly a check as a matter of course. He had seemed to suppose as a matter of course, also, that Aunt Louise, at her schoolteaching in Colorado, would expect and take money.

Eileen was fiercely glad, then, in the raw evening, that Aunt Louise had, with frank surprise, refused it. But that refusal meant that she could no more go home than before. For the present she must even stay away from Molly Flanagan. That was the end of that. She had to make a plan to get out of the city, to get to the place Caroline and Martin's lawyers would think of. They would feel that, hooked up again with Molly and Aristides, she was the gold digger everybody thought her.

Whereas she had only been a desperate, romantic little fool. She was wet, when she thought about Martin Dane. She moved slowly about the dusk, an outcast—an outsider—as regards both her worlds.

In stories, Bill Grant, who had dashed off to Spain, because he'd been in love with her, would suddenly appear and take over. But Bill Grant was in Spain. And if he started up on the pavement this minute she couldn't do anything about it, never having had the slightest interest in Bill Grant beyond a mild liking. She wouldn't take a chance on the Jordan Estill thing happening again.

Delevar Again

She finally found a temporary room at the Y.W.C.A.

Waking next day, miserable with a horrible dry-eyed misery, she yet had a clear plan in her mind. There was one place where she could and would go.

It took Ellen Barnett, even when she had said she had a message from Mrs. Martin Dane, a long time to fight through the tangle of careful secretarial barriers which protected Lewis Delevar from unseen callers.

The important Mr. Delevar of the Willesdon Institute, it was borne in on her, differed from the man who danced worse than any of the Adirondack house party, whom she had fought almost contemptuously over Martin. Yet who—this was her safeguard—who would be glad to hide her whereabouts and her doings from Martin to the end of time.

Finally she was in a straight-backed chair, with light pouring down on her from a grey office window in a small asexually bare room. Lewis faced her from behind his desk. His dark rugged face was blank and unfriendly, after its flash of surprise. All right. Open instead of secret unfriendliness was a relief.

"What can I do for you, Mrs. Dane?" he asked stiffly.

"What you promised before I married Martin. I want a job."

"I'm sorry if safe-society has pulled; but the Institute has a principle against society volunteers."

"My marriage is washed up. I want a paid job." She hurried on before he could refuse again. "You were right about my being a fool to want to marry him. He did it the same way he brought home two snow leopards once. The way he took in a tramp once. Just wanted to see what a gold digger was close to. I won't take a cent from him. I've written him so over my signature. Caroline's down there, he spilled it all to her. I was just a slight break in their lifelong engagement. Mr. Delevar, you hate me as much as you do Caroline, but you have a stake in getting me a job here under another name, freeing Martin from me quietly. Find me work. Handle the divorce without telling Martin where I am."

Lewis was around the desk, his deep magnetic voice suddenly warm. "Eileen, I do believe in you now! I always knew you could be this sort at bottom. I never hated you. I'll help you, guide you, show you how to help others." He stood over her, tall and rugged, taking both her hands.

She left the office, to return next day, with Lewis Delevar's deep voice ringing heartily in her ears. "You're going to have a new life, a worthwhile life, full of big things, not little personal ones."

As she started at the bright subway cards, sitting wedged between a fat Negro woman and a long-bearded old man in sweat-smelling clothes, she suddenly wanted the little personal things in a terrible backwash of feeling. Martin's soft laugh, his amused voice in her ears, his face against hers. Not believing any good of her, just taking what he could get from an affectionate little adventuress. "Sweet kid."

She braced, and made herself stop hearing that voice. A new life. A worth-while life. To be continued

New Books

By John Selby

"BLOOD, SWEAT AND TEARS," by Winston S. Churchill; (Putnam: $3).

SO MUCH fuss has been made recently over the particular blessing of science which has made it possible to hear the great speeches of our time, even though they may be delivered thousands of miles away, that some of the more shallow-minded have almost forgotten that it is still possible to print these speeches, and to have them for quiet examination in one's own library.

Most of us have heard some of the speeches now brought together and printed in "Blood, Sweat and Tears." We heard them as Winston S. Churchill spoke them, and their sturdy delivery and extraordinary appositeness brought tears to some eyes.

It is now possible to say two important things about the Churchill speeches between May, 1938, and February 9, 1941, as they are printed in "Blood, Sweat and Tears." One is that no matter whether they are read in Nazi Germany, or St. Louis, Mo., it is not possible to overlook the fact that Mr. Churchill has been right more often than a statesman has a right to expect to be right. The other is that their temper is precisely that of modern England.

The speeches, as collected by the Prime Minister's son Randolph, begin with that remarkable utterance of May, 1938, on the subject of the relinquishment of English rights in the Irish treaty ports. Churchill disapproved, and no intelligent man is blind today to the fact that had Britain bases in Ireland she would be far ahead of her present position in the Battle of the Atlantic. Those were the days when Churchill was still being called a male Cassandra. He kept to his last, and events have pretty well followed the course he predicted, as anyone can find who wishes to check through the pages of "Blood, Sweat and Tears."

The last words in the book are these: "We shall not fail or falter; we shall not weaken or tire. Neither the sudden shock of battle, nor the long-drawn trials of vigilance and exertion will wear us down. Give us the tools, and we will finish the job."

The new body of water created by Fort Peck dam in Montana will stand third among fresh water lakes wholly within the United States.

Two Policemen Killed

Williamsport, May 13 (AP)—Police Chief John G. Good noted a grim coincidence this week. Last January Patrolman James Bradley and Detective James McCort of the Philadelphia police department aided in capturing two local car thieves. Within the last two weeks both have been killed. Bradley in a gun battle and McCort by a hit-run motorist.

Haircut Any Time

Philadelphia, May 13 (AP)—You can get a haircut almost any time in Scranton, says the state supreme court. The tribunal threw out a Scranton ordinance fixing the opening and closing hours of barber shops, declaring it wasn't a "health measure" as represented. Tonsorial artists claimed it interfered with their art.

Marian Martin Pattern

SLIMMING BUTTON-FRONT DRESS

MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9595

A very practical style is this wonderfully slenderizing matron frock, so perfect to wear "all round the clock and the calendar." Its clean simplicity of line and perfect balance make Pattern 9595 unusually flattering; its few pattern parts and quick stitching are typical Marian Martin features. First, notice how the slimming, smooth effect of the panels is accentuated by the all-down-the-front buttoning that's so convenient for speedy dressing and flatspread ironing. Front and back seams slant in at either side, just over the hips, giving a sleek long-waisted effect you'll like. Those optional revers add a crisp, tailored touch to the whole style; a belt and lace or ric-rac edging would make nice "extras." Send for this style now!

Pattern 9595 may be ordered only in women's sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50. Size 36 requires 4 1/2 yards 35 inch fabric.

Send fifteen cents in coins for this Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your size, name, address and style number.

Bodies of 2 New Yorkers Found at Plane Wreckage

Lewistown, Pa., May 13 (AP)—Aviation's graveyard of the Alleghenies has given up another of its preys, this time the charred wreckage of a plane in which a socially-prominent New York couple crashed to death in dense fog.

The horribly mangled bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Brewster were found late Monday amid splintered pieces of the $25,000 ship in which they started out four days ago on a cross-country pleasure jaunt.

Spurred by a $1,000 reward, some 70 planes were hunting the missing couple when an All-American Aviation airmail pilot made the discovery on his regular flight. Searchers were directed to the remote scene by air.

The Brewster Beechcraft had struck the top of the 1,800-foot Shade mountain 25 miles south of this central Pennsylvania town, snapping off tree tops, plowing up nearly 100 feet of ground and finally bursting into flames.

Coroner Charles W. Straub, declaring the deaths accidental, said the ship would have cleared the treacherous mountain with 150 feet additional altitude. He fixed time of the crash at 5:30 p. m. Friday.

Brewster, 35-year-old experienced pilot and associate of a New York investment firm, and his wife, the former Leonie DeBary Lyon, had left Roosevelt field only a few hours previously on a six-hour hop to visit friends at Warren, O. Investigators said they apparently got off their westward course and were heading east when the crash came.

DEATHS

Countian Dies of Injuries In Crash Near Hanover

Charles Henry Smith, aged 27 years, New Oxford R. 1, Monday succumbed to injuries received when his automobile rolled over several times and was completely demolished at about 11:40 o'clock Sunday night along the Hanover-Baltimore road, about six miles south of Hanover. Death occurred at the Hanover General hospital Monday at 6:15 a. m.

Dr. L. U. Zech, York county coroner, was notified and attributed death to a fracture at the base of the skull and contusions and lacerations over the body.

Two other occupants of the machine, Mrs. Smith, wife of the operator who was the former Gladys Sponseller, and Miss Eva Garrett, 636 Broadway, Hanover, are patients at the Hanover institution.

Mrs. Smith is suffering from lacerations of the scalp and bruises over part of her body and Miss Garrett, aged 21 years, received lacerations of the scalp and a fracture of the left leg. Their conditions were described by hospital attaches as fair.

The trio, it was learned, was enroute to Hanover from Fort George G. Meade, Maryland, where they previously had returned Mr. Smith's brother, Private Joseph T. Smith, of the United States Army, who had spent the week-end visiting at his home, Hanover R. 4. Private Smith is attached to the 105th Infantry, Anti-Tank Battalion.

According to Miss Garrett's version of the accident, Mr. Smith was forced off the roadway by a large tractor-trailer truck proceeding in the opposite direction. As he attempted to drive back on the paved roadway he lost control of the machine which rolled over several times and came to rest on the wide shoulder edging the highway.

Mr. Smith, a son of Harry A. and Gertrude Miller Smith, Hanover R. 4, was born January 28, 1913. He was employed by the Cannon Shoe company, McSherrystown, and was a member of the Fraternal Order of Eagles, McSherrystown, and of the Hanover Home Association, Baltimore street, Hanover. He also was a member of the Irishtown Fire company and the Holy Name society. He was a member of the congregation of St. Mary's Catholic church, New Oxford.

Surviving are his wife; parents, and six brothers and one sister; Lewis S. Smith, 122 Main street, McSherrystown; Wilbur P. and Guy Smith, at home; Frederick A. Plus J. and Mary Rita, also at home, and Private Joseph T. Smith, Camp Meade.

Mrs. Elder L. Sheely, wife of Elder L. Sheely, died at her home on Lumber street, Littlestown, this morning at 2 o'clock from a complication of diseases.

She was a daughter of the late Tobias and Eleanor (Crouse) Brown. The deceased was a member of St. John's Lutheran church, Littlestown, and had been employed at Jacobs Brothers' sewing factory, Littlestown.

In addition to her husband she is survived by one son, Guy, Westminster; five grandchildren, and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Charles Hesson, Hanover; Mrs. Randolph Bechtel, York; Mrs. Milton Yingling, Manchester; Mrs. Hattie Mickle, Hanover; Mrs. Joseph Lawrence, Gettysburg; Mrs. Charles Frownfelter, Littlestown; Maurice Brown, Hanover, and Oscar Brown, address unknown.

Funeral services from the J. W. Little and Son funeral home, Littlestown, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Kenneth D. James. Interment in Mt. Carmel cemetery.

Friends may call at the funeral home Wednesday evening from 7 to 9 o'clock.

State to Furnish 4,178 Draftees From June 4-10

Harrisburg, May 13 (AP)—The U. S. Army today called upon Pennsylvania to furnish 4,178 men between June 4 and June 10 for a year's military training. The requisition called for 3,960 white and 218 negro men.

The men will be inducted under the new "waiting period" plan and will go direct from their home districts to army reception centers at New Cumberland, Fort Meade, Maryland, and Camp Lee, Virginia. The breakdown follows:

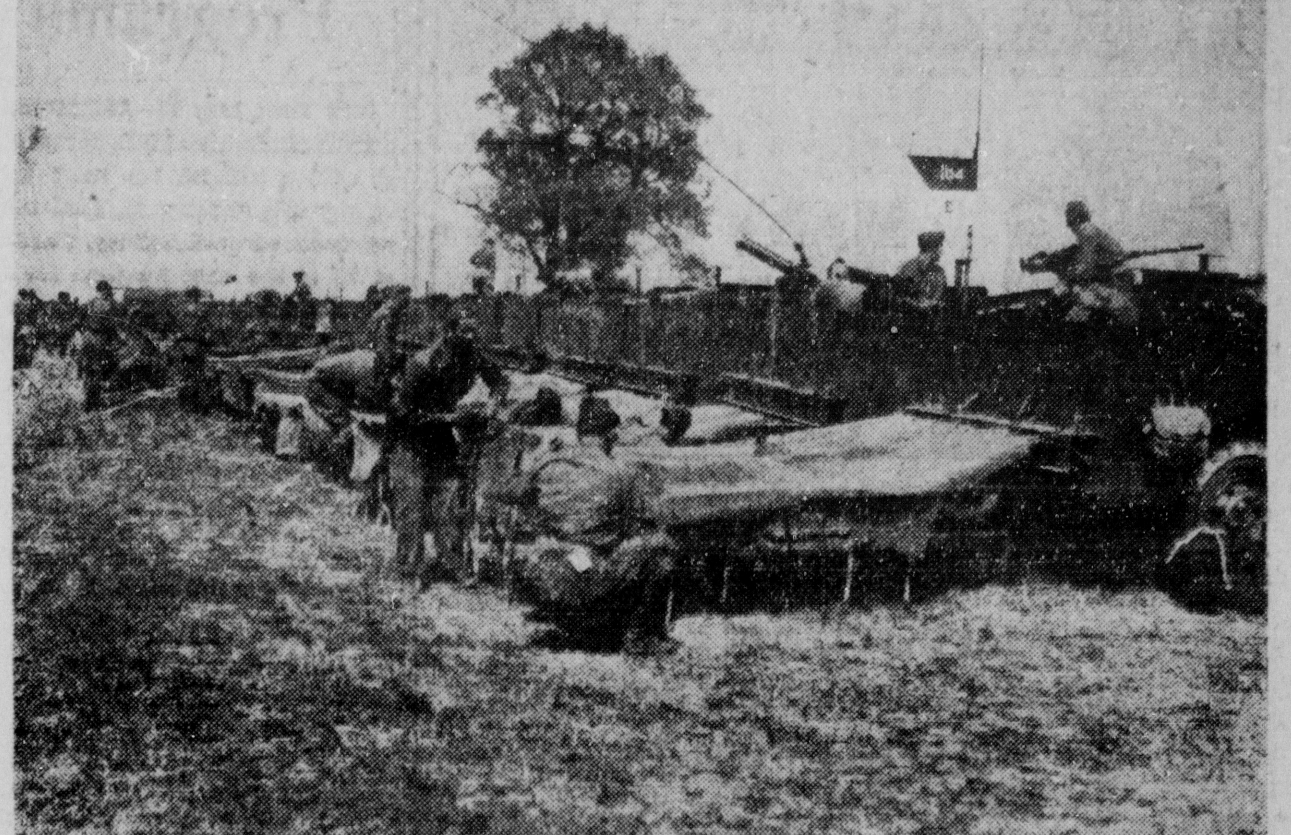

Fort Meade, 1,666 white and 218 negro men; New Cumberland, 1,080 white men; Camp Lee, 214 white men.

The men to be inducted will be taken from among the 18,967 men directed to report to eight army examination stations in the state for final army physical examinations between May 1 and June 21.

Dr. William Mather Lewis, state service director, said that after the army examination stations begin physical tests of men on May 21, they will telegraph state headquarters daily the number of men from each of the 422 local boards accepted for military service.

State headquarters, under the plan, then will issue individual calls upon specific local boards for the number of men each board will be required to provide. Those calls will be made until the requisition for 4,178 men is filled.

ing the Tiber and Winebrenner's run was made by representatives of the Junior Chamber of Commerce at Monday's meeting. The Junior Chamber members and the Boy Scouts of the borough will begin cleaning the Tiber Wednesday afternoon at 4:15 p. m. The group will gather at the Gettysburg fire engine house and will proceed to the Tiber to the rear of East Middle street to begin the cleaning.

Survey Started

It was reported at the meeting that the borough fire marshal and the health officer had begun a survey of the town to determine what sections were not cleaned up during the recent "clean-up week" sponsored by the borough council. Prosecution will be brought against those who did not take advantage of the recent clean-up of the borough. It also was reported that the firemen of the borough were ready to burn off any weedy sections of the town upon request of any citizen.

Tentative arrangements was concluded for members of the C.C.C. camp to pick up oil to be poured into the headwaters of the Tiber.

The oil will be placed in the stream at the first high waters in order that the entire length of the stream may be oiled. Six lots in the borough were listed officially for investigation by the service committee of the group. The lots are in the south, northeast and eastern sections of the town.

Among the organizations represented Monday night were the United Brethren church, the United Brethren Missionary society; the Methodist church, Rebekah lodge, Woman's league of college, Warner hospital auxiliary, Y.W.C.A., St. James Lutheran church, Christ Lutheran Missionary society, Women's Guild, Woman's club, Eastern Star, Reformed Guild, Gettysburg Lutheran Theological seminary, American Legion, Sons of Veterans, and Junior Chamber of Commerce.

At the Burgoon and Yingling plant here J. I. Burgoon said this afternoon that some of his farmers began planting Monday but did not return for more plants today. He had no reports from them on the possibility of damage from this morning's frost. He has about 200 acres contracted for requiring about 600,000 plants.

While some parts of the county were free from frost and its attendant damage other reported tender green vegetables in gardens and garden patches were nipped. Most orchards have not been seriously harmed, it is believed.

In the Fayetteville section, frosts of the last three mornings are believed to have caused considerable damage to tomatoes, early peas and corn.

Paris, (AP)—Armor breastplates and finely carved helmets which Napoleon took from Vienna and from Ambras Castle in Tyrol have been returned from Paris to Vienna.

Much of the collection represented finest selections of German armor design. Particularly prized was a splendidly decorated war costume of Francis II of France, who began his reign in 1559, a year after he had married Queen Mary Stuart of Scotland.

ground, the belief here was that British authorities were alive to the possibility of an audacious Nazi trap, or "plant," and would be exceedingly wary in making use of any information he might offer.

But should his good faith be established beyond doubt, it was pointed out, the British would have a wealth of highly reliable and valuable information at their disposal.

Why the Story Was Delayed

There was some conjecture here as to why London had withheld news of Hess's capture almost three days. The general opinion was that Britain preferred to have the Nazis make the first announcement on the subject in the hope of a mistake that would have propaganda value later.

Frosts Delay Planting

Of Tomatoes in County

Frosts on Sunday and Monday mornings and again this morning have slowed or delayed the beginning of the setting out of several million tomato plants by commercial growers in Adams county, a checkup disclosed today while an uncertain amount of damage to plants already out was reported.

At the C. H. Musselman company in Biglerville planting has not been permitted to date because of the cold weather but may start later this week if weather conditions warrant. Close to 2,000,000 plants will be set out this year, the most of them during next week with the planting expected to be finished the week of May 26, a company spokesman said today.

At the Burgoon and Yingling plant here J. I. Burgoon said this afternoon that some of his farmers began planting Monday but did not return for more plants today. He had no reports from them on the possibility of damage from this morning's frost. He has about 200 acres contracted for requiring about 600,000 plants.

While some parts of the county were free from frost and its attendant damage other reported tender green vegetables in gardens and garden patches were nipped. Most orchards have not been seriously harmed, it is believed.

In the Fayetteville section, frosts of the last three mornings are believed to have caused considerable damage to tomatoes, early peas and corn.

R-a-d-i-o Programs

New York, May 13—ASCAP music goes back on the MBS network at 10 o'clock tonight, but there won't be any special program. That is being deferred until Sunday. The hour of 10 is the effective time for the new contract with ASCAP, proposed by the chain's board of directors after a period of negotiation and ratified at St. Louis by a majority of affiliated stations. Thus the regular night dance schedule can include ASCAP music for the first time since January 1 in addition to tunes of BMI. Under prevailing contracts the intention is to continue BMI.

OFFERED DRAFT DEFERMENTS

Philadelphia, May 13 (AP)—Two men accused of conspiring to sell deferments to young men eligible for the military draft drew federal prison sentences from Judge Guy K. Bard who termed their action "sordid and reprehensible." Morris Winter, 33, got a year and three months and Fred Kaplan, 29, former chief clerk of a city draft board, a year and one month. They also were fined $50 each and Kaplan was given another sentence of a year and a month, to run concurrently, on another indictment against him. The two were accused of trying to obtain $50 from Max Dantowitz on a promise they could get him deferred. Dantowitz later enlisted.

LINK—Margaret Sullivan, queen of Carnegie Tech's spring carnival, adds the link of the class of '43 to class chain, in accordance with annual tradition.
